Elevation of soluble and lipid-linked oligosaccharides in liver microsomes of pregnant guinea-pigs. Liver microsomal total glycogen-bound oligosaccharides from pregnant guinea-pigs were separated into free and lipid-linked forms by gel chromatography on Sephadex G-200. In the free form, 3 galactose residues, one N-acetylgalactosamine and one mannose were present. The lipid-linked oligosaccharides were separated into lipid-linked monosaccharides (galactose, N-acetylglucosamine, N-acetylgalactosamine, fucose) and a lipid-linked oligosaccharide. The lipid-linked oligosaccharide was composed of one galactose residue and eight N-acetylglucosamine residues. About 20% of the lipid-linked oligosaccharide was used to generate phosphatidylinositol-linked oligosaccharides. The results demonstrate that there is an elevation of the hepatic content of glycogen-bound free oligosaccharides and lipid-linked oligosaccharides in pregnant guinea-pigs.

Paul Ryan rips 'lies and deceit' in N.H. Senate race
MIDDLETON, N.H. — House Budget Committee Chairman Paul Ryan bashed his Democratic challenger in New Hampshire for "lies and deceit" over his Medicare prescription drug plan, denying the Republican's plan would slash benefits. Ryan's dig came at the end of a town hall-style meeting here that also
